

N.C. Wyeth

N.C. Wyeth

Title

After a long look I saw that he did not resume his narrative. By that I knew that the stranger was troubling him.

Medium

Oil on canvas (black and white)

Date

1911

Catalogue Number

2009.8

Credit Line

Purchased with the Museum Volunteers' Fund, 2009

Web Description

Wyeth painted the illustrations for this story at the same time he was working on the Treasure Island commission. This image, in particular, demonstrates Wyeth's ability to create memorable characters that add such energy to the narrative. And even though Wyeth was a master colorist, as demonstrated in the Treasure Island paintings, he could create an equally powerful composition using a gray scale palette.
