

Bequest of Ruth A. Yerion, 1990

Arthur Byron Phillips

Arthur Byron Phillips

Title

Thursday's Man

Medium

Egg tempera on board

Date

n.d.

Catalogue Number

90.12.9

Copyright

© artist, artist's estate, or other rights holders

Credit Line

Web Description

Unlike every other work in this exhibition, Thursday's Man is captured completely unaware, without the pretext of posing for his portrait. Though many portraits depict a natural pose, the sitter is usually conscious of being observed by the artist. In this work, the sleeping sitter is not identified by name, and his face is partially turned away from the viewer. Even though it appears to be a detailed rendering of a figure, should we still consider it to be a portrait?